

TEXTING WHILE DRIVING:

SENDING THE WRONG MESSAGE?

{NATIONWIDE SURVEY}

New Survey of Teens Shows Parents Are Sending the Wrong Message Regarding Texting While Driving

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for 14-18 year olds in the United States. In 2013, 2,614 teen drivers were involved in fatal crashes and an estimated 130,000 more were injured according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

There are enormous risks associated with driving. Driver inexperience is the main cause of teen crashes. It's a fact that all new drivers – even straight-A students and “good kids” – are likelier than experienced drivers to be involved in a fatal crash. Teens are more likely than older drivers to underestimate dangerous situations or not be able to recognize hazardous situations.

A new nationwide survey offers surprising attitudes and observations into the impact parental driving behaviors can have on teen driving behaviors. The survey released by Driving-Tests.org, a leading online driver education provider, reveals that parents need to set a positive example while they drive and understand the tremendous positive and negative impact their driving habits can have on their teen.

SURVEY METHODS:

An online survey of teenagers in the learning to drive process was completed by 2,000 participants in September 2015.
